Organized by
Institute for Advanced Studies Kőszeg
UNESCO Chair in Cultural Heritage Management and Sustainability - Kőszeg
Institute for Social and European Studies - Kőszeg
Pannonia University - Kőszeg Campus

24th-28th February 2020

KŐSZEG, HUNGARY

In What and Whom Do We Trust? The sustainability of ideals and re-evaluation of values across continents

Why are we seeing the rise of post-liberal regimes? What impact does this have on institutional trust at the local, national, and supranational levels? Is this merely a temporary global 'glitch' that will evaporate over time as new challenges emerge?

The upcoming Winter School will tackle issues related to the erosion of societal trust and the crisis of institutions. Academic researchers, students, activists and public officials come together from all over the world to discuss visions for re-establishing and strengthening trust on global, regional, national and local levels of governance and politics. MOST Schools are capacity-building activities, they help researchers and decision-makers to develop and translate knowledge into action.

Invited speakers include: H. E. Mladen Andrić (Croatian Ambassador to Hungary), Janos Bogardi (University of Bonn/iASK), H.E. Katalin Bogyay (Hungary's Ambassador to the UN), Sean Cleary (Strategic Concepts Ltd.), Ahmet Evin (Sabanci University), György Schöpflin (former MEP), Csilla Vörös (Nielsen Audience Measurement),
